

Bequests

Bequests are vital to ensure the ongoing success of the Australian Music Centre.

By making a bequest to the Australian Music Centre (AMC) in your Will, your gift will help us to support creators' professional development, commissions and programs, develop our Australian music collection, and animate works to engage future generations of music-makers.

How to make a bequest

The most useful type of bequest is a monetary gift intended for the general purposes of the AMC. It permits us to direct your gift to where it is most needed at the time, to maximum benefit.

If you are considering bequeathing items for the AMC collection or leaving a bequest to a specific project, please contact us to discuss your ideas.

Suggested wording to include in your Will

I give to the Australian Music Centre Ltd

[insert whichever is appropriate]

- The whole of my estate; or
- The sum of $___ dollars; or
- ___ percentage of the rest and residue of my estate, for its general purposes, and I declare that the receipt of an authorised representative of the said organisation shall be sufficient discharge to my Trustee(s).

If you have already made a Will but wish to modify it to benefit the AMC, a codicil allows you to modify the terms of the original Will without having to change the entire document. The AMC recommends that you seek professional advice from your solicitor and financial advisor in arranging a bequest.

We encourage supporters who have made a bequest to let us know. By notifying us of your intentions, we will be able to thank you in person and discuss in more detail how your gift might be used to maximum benefit.

How we recognise bequests

We would be delighted to acknowledge your pledge by name on the AMC website and in the AMC Annual Report.

While we welcome the opportunity to publicly thank you for your generosity, we respect your wish to remain anonymous.
